

Meno Consulting to Speak at PYP Event on March 24

Morgantown, W.Va., March 24, 2010 - Meno Consulting managing partners Dan Leidl and Joe Frontiera will be speaking to the Pittsburgh Young Professionals (PYP) meeting.

Entitled “One Sport Metaphor at a Time”, Leidl and Frontiera’s presentation will examine how sport provides an excellent lens through which to view the business world. From the pressure-packed immediacy of winning and losing multi-million dollar opportunities on a weekly basis to choreographing high-performing groups of talented individuals into one cohesive unit, sport serves as a unique laboratory and proving ground for organizational and leadership development theory and practice. In focusing on the broader goal of performance, Joe and Dan will discuss how collaborative teams, self-awareness, and individual leadership development can serve as a foundation for corporate success.

Formed in 1988, PYP now has a membership base of over 400 young professionals, and its mission is to provide career-minded individuals with opportunities to develop socially, professionally, and civically. In the last two years, PYP has hosted over 100 social, networking, and community service events.
